Native American Flute Making

James Wilsing is a musician and woodworker from Sheboygan, Wisconsin. He has combined two of his passions, music and woodworking to make flutes and work on bagpipes. In our March meeting, Jim will tell us how he got into making Native American flutes and explain how they are made. This will be an opportunity to learn about woodworking in a different perspective.

These pictures are of a similar “drone” flute, ie, 2 flutes in one.

NOTES FROM THE LAST MEETING

Program Review

Our presenter was Jerry Anson, from the Milwaukee Woodworkers Guild. He brought 2 large scale tools, a hand drill and a hand plane, that their Guild built, to have as displays at the upcoming, Milwaukee based Woodworkers Show.

Jerry presented a slide show and demonstration detailing the process. They disassembled the standard tools, made patterns, enlarged them to 6x original and constructed all parts of wood. 9 people worked on the plane, 6 on the drill. Individuals worked separately on the various parts, and later assembled the tool. All parts fit! And the drill actually turns a long wooden drill bit!

Jerry showed in detail the various jigs he invented to make the toothed gears, the inside and outside threads and knurled surface of the chuck. Large turnings were needed for the drill shaft and knobs on both tools. A CAD system was used for some of the design, as well as CNC for some of the precision cuttings. Really impressive!

Michael Berg of Tigerton Vic Gulla of Appleton Nic Hendel of Appleton

Mark Kunstman of Waupaca Jeff Treu of Waupaca

As of March 6, we have 121 active members with an additional 70 members who have received their "Final Renewal Reminder." I hope many of these 70 will renew their memberships prior to March 31. Receiving this Bench Talk newsletter and having other club benefits is contingent on having "active" status.

On Saturday, February 18, the Guild held a NEWWG membership drive at the Woodcraft store in Appleton. Woodcraft was holding turning demos from 10am-3pm. We were invited to attend to invite shoppers to join the Guild. Wes Brown, one of our new members and manager of the Woodcraft of Appleton store, set us up with a display table right inside the door. Woodcraft promoted this Guild membership event on Facebook and their exclusive e-mail list.

The event was a huge win for our Guild. I had the opportunity to talk with dozens of people that day. Nine new members joined at this event. The Guild thanks Wes and the Woodcraft team for promoting the Guild and giving us this opportunity.

Finally, if you have not already done so, please update your 2023 membership status by paying your dues this month. Thanks!

There is a grant program through the Wisconsin Dep’t of tourism, called the “Joint Effort Marketing (JEM) Grants”. Chuck reported that he had a preliminary discussion with Grant coordinator and learned that the Guild is likely eligible for grant support for marketing/publicity costs for the show. He will be having further discussions this week.

Respectfully Submitted, Chuck Druckrey – Treasurer

Membership: Eric reports good interest at the membership sign up event at Woodcraft on 2/18: 7 individual & 2 family memberships, with 2 others planning to attend a meeting and sign up then. Eric showed the slide show he developed as an intro to the guild. 90 unpaid or inactive members have been sent “final reminders” to renew by 2/28/23.
